

Parenting Between Cultures

Are you parenting in a culture different to your upbringing? Or are you looking for ways to balance cultural differences between you and your partner? Raising children in a new country and different culture can be a challenge. Parents may wonder how to respond when children ask for sandwiches rather than traditional meals with rice or daal, or how to navigate practices such as playdates and sleepovers.

We will be exploring:

- How culture impacts parenting
- What aspects of culture work well and not well in your family
- How culture affects your child's identity and wellbeing
- Children's brain development and needs
- Decision making that works for your family.
